Last month, I shared a little bit about your role as parents in overseeing and monitoring the dating/romantic relationships your students are involved in. I hope you took the time to read it. If you haven't yet, go check it out on the youth ministry page of the church website. One of the most important things, though, regarding the dating/romantic relationships of our students now and in the future is the health of our dating/romantic/marriage relationships as parents and pastor. I was having a conversation earlier today with a retired football coach who now works with Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He made a statement about how coaches are always setting an example for their players whether they are intending to or not. That truth is the same in terms of our students and our relationships. Whatever they see in our relationships now will have a great impact on the dating/romantic relationships they are a part of now and in the future. We all must be mindful of our impact and influence at all times. Maintaining healthy, Christ-like dating/marriage relationships in our lives as parents and pastor is the best tool we have in helping our students understand and know what it looks like to be in and maintain a healthy, Christ-like relationship.

This month is a huge month for our youth ministry. We have 2 HUGE events on the calendar. First, March 25-26 is YEC (Youth Evangelism Conference). If your student is registered to attend, I will send out an info. video next week. Be on the lookout! Second, March 29-31 is our first ever Spring Break Serve event. We are praying that this event will be huge!

Let me encourage you to join me in beginning to pray for your students and these events right now. God is already working in the hearts of the students that will be a part of these events. Let's join Him!
